“It’s not about ideas. It’s about making ideas happen.” 28 year old Kalpana Bhagat a commerce graduate lives in a joint family. The combined income of her father in law who works as a class 4 employee in the Government sector and her husband who work in the private sector was woefully inadequate to meet the financial needs of the family.

Kalpana and her family live in the government quarters given to her father in law. Being a mother of two sons studying in the school inside the Quarters, she found that her children had to go out of the compound for printing their project work and for photo copies. Being a graduate with computer knowledge and with the newfound confidence I Create training had given her, she decided to start her own computer and photocopying center inside the quarters. Her father in law encouraged her and gave his full support and also brought in more customers.

She has been helped with Rs. 30,000 from I Create MAGIC Fund to start her business. Kalpana is earning Rs. 5,000 a month now as well as helping the children in her colony to do the project work without the hassle of going out of the compound.
